THE SMALL POX SCARE

Exaggerated reports of the present epidemic of variola and varicella (better known to the lay mind as chicken pox and small pox) are in circulation, and it is as well that the outside public should know exactly the extent to which the disease has gone; for in the truth there is nothing alarming or dreadful. The worst that is to be known has already been told. The disease is precisely the same as that which has been epidemic in the States for the past six months or more. It closely resembles chicken pox and small pox; chicken pox in a virulent form or small pox in a mild form, so mild, that the patient in the majority of cases feels almost no inconvenience from it. No matter what the nature of the disease, it is highly contagious, and the fact that in some cases it develops to a dangerous degree, is sufficient to warrant the most careful precautions and to justify the most rigid quarantine. There is no doubt that a great difference of opinion exists among the doctors as to the nature of the disease, but whatever it is it is highly undetectable. The medical men in their wide divergence of opinion have not succeeded in convincing each other, or of conveying any greater sense of confidence to the public who look to them as healers of all human ailments. On the face of the difference of opinion the Territorial government did the only thing left open for them, they sent an outside doctor, a disinterested party, to diagnose the disease and it is sufficient for the ordinary public that he has called it "variola," or in plain language, small pox. His diagnosis is disputed by some and endorsed by others. Such being the case how much more would the opinion of a local practitioner have been repudiated. The government has been repudiated in its care, and the government says as small pox. The power of quarantining any part of the country lies in the government. Briefly, the situation is that we are interested in, credits us with small pox. So long as that idea exists the district will be at a disadvantage until it is known that the epidemic no longer exists. While doctors disagree and the epidemic increases the situation is not likely to improve. The action that has been decided on by the authorities is one that will appeal to all reasonable and thinking men. They have decided to accept the diagnosis of the government, for the present time at least, and to set to work by every means within their power to stamp out the epidemic. The assistance of every one concerned is necessary in order to make their efforts successful and in order to rid ourselves of the disease before injury is done to the business interests of the district. From the disease itself there is practically no direct danger. Vaccination is an almost invariable preventative. What the district has to guard against and fear is injury to its business interests more than personal danger to its settlers.

PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.

[Parliament has been in session for a full business week, and although the work done has not been great, some very important items of business have been dealt with. The daily sittings have been short, but the speeches have been short, too. It never was the business which delayed the house in former years; it was talking about the business, or indeed frequently about what was not properly business at all.]

On Friday last, the first business day, the house was full and the galleries crowded to hear Sir Wilfrid deliver his address on the late Queen-Empress, while making a resolution of loyalty to King Edward. Although the address of the premier has been very greatly praised all over the Dominion, its delivery it did not sound as well as it reads. This has been excused on the ground that the occasion was not suitable to the "singing of more oratory." But another reason may be ventured. The tone was argumentative or explanatory—not to say apologetic—instead of triumphant as would have been appropriate. No doubt the address was better than any other man in Canada could have made, but at the moment it seemed to fall short of what might have been expected of Sir Wilfrid on such a rare and great occasion. It was full of sound sayings and good thoughts, well expressed, but it lacked the fire of eloquence, of which Sir Wilfrid is so thoroughly a master, and which the occasion seemed to specially invite.

The speech of the leader of the opposition in answering the resolution was in the best of taste. He did not undertake to compete with Sir Wilfrid in the field of oratory, and confined himself to plain statements and appropriate figures.

The resolution of loyalty was carried unanimously without further debate.

On Monday the speech from the throne was read with the address in reply was moved by Mr. Guthrie, the new member for South Wellington, Ont., who succeeded Kioffer, conservative. The speech of Mr. Guthrie, who is comparatively young man, was acknowledged to be one of the best, if not the best, speech ever made in the house of commons on such an occasion. It was clear, concise, argumentative, and eloquent in the truest sense; that is, it was convincing, and above all it was short. There was no hedging or dodging. He faced the issues squarely, argued them out and accepted their proper and reasonable conclusion. It is to be hoped that this speech marks a new era in Canadian parliamentary debate, in which dependence will be placed on the sense and not on the supposed lack of sense, of those who are compelled to listen when it will be the effort of the speakers to say well what they have to say for the approbation and information of their friends rather than merely talk their opponents tired.

A feature in this connection is that Mr. Guthrie is a son of an ex-member for the same district, who had the pleasure of listening to his son from the gallery. Mr. Thompson, a new member, who has been chosen as a liberal whip for Ontario, is also the son of an ex-member for the county he now represents. These instances show that Ontario is getting to be an old country. They show that the new stock is of the old, and that the country is large, and parliament as well, is becoming more and more markedly and thoroughly Canadian, and at the same time is improving as markedly and thoroughly.

The address was seconded by Mr. Marcell M. P. for Bonaventure, Quebec, who spoke first in French and then in English. Mr. Marcell's appearance is most promising, and his address was as notable a departure from the ordinary as was that of Mr. Guthrie. Mr. Marcell has a beautifully rounded period and well turned phrases when speaking in English to declare his unreserved loyalty to the crown of Great Britain, and his loyalty to the English Canada, and to make a plea for mutual good understanding between Canadians of all races. Mr. Marcell's English was as good as his French, and he was perfectly at ease in handling it. Although the French-Canadian members have a very high average as speakers and debaters, Mr. Marcell is a notable addition to their talent.

Mr. Borden, leader of the opposition, replied shortly to the speeches of the mover and seconder, and the address passed without further debate.

A number of departmental reports and the main estimates for next year were laid on the table. This is remarkably early in the session for the reports and estimates to be brought down. The delay of these reports last session was made the excuse for the delay of business by the opposition. The delay of the reports last year was due to the inadequacy of the facilities of the government printing bureau, and the delay was a cause of complaint against the government. This year the delay was avoided in the only way possible, by getting a number of the reports printed outside, and this is made an equal ground of complaint. One of the many instances which prove that a government is at all times wrong—in the eyes of their opponents. Not so much because of what they do as because of what they are; or possibly more because of where they are.

Tuesday's session was made interesting by W. F. McLean's opening the campaign in parliament against railway competition in British Columbia. In doing so he adopted the tactics of his late leader and brought up the question on the speaker calling the orders of the day. In order that matters of extreme urgency may be conveyed without the delay that would be necessary to reach them by the giving of the ordinary notice, there is a privilege allowed of bringing up such questions at that stage of the business of the house. This privilege was grossly abused during the whole of the last parliament by the then leader of the opposition, and a few of his more talkative followers. Day after day week after week were wasted in fruitless discussion on matters outside the proper business of the house. It was always possible for the speaker to shut off such discussions, but in deference to the age and history of Sir Charles, action was not taken in his case, and therefore could not be taken in the case of others. On Tuesday, however, both the speaker and the premier gave notice to all and guaranty that no more abuse of this privilege—such as Mr. McLean was attempting—would be allowed. Mr. McLean, however, was permitted to finish his remarks. His speech showed a complete reversal of the position held by him during the whole of the last parliament on the railway question, and even of that held by his paper the Toronto World in a leading article of the previous day. Formerly he would see in the construction of new lines by competing companies or by the government an effective means of curbing railway monopoly in Canada. Now he is altogether against the construction of competing lines in Canada by United States companies and can see in the purchase by the government of a controlling interest in the U. P. R. the only sound solution of Canada's railway problem. It was not so much what Mr. McLean said that is worthy of special attention as his change of attitude at this particular time, apparently forming part of a grand campaign which is being laid out by the C. P. R. to defeat the project of further railway competition in Southern British Columbia. It is the case of the Kettle river railway charter over again, but applied to East Kootenay instead of to the Kettle river district, and to the transportation of coal instead of the transportation of ore. The effect of the C. P. R. campaign is that Canada should not sell coal to the United States. Not that the C. P. R. refuses to transport both coal and coke to the United States at the present time, for a great part of the traffic over the Crow's Nest road is coal hauled from Fernie to Lethbridge for transport to the smelters at Great Falls, but because if the charter now being applied for is granted another company, and not the C. P. R. would do the hauling.

A number of questions of more or less interest were disposed of and still more reports were brought down.

The government was ready to proceed with the estimates, but the opposition objected until the auditor-general's report had been brought down. On Wednesday an hour was occupied with closed doors discussing the appointment of rooms among the different groups of members. As all members got their mail at the house of commons post office, it is more convenient for them to answer it from the house than elsewhere. The buildings are large and there are many rooms, but there are also many members who divide into many groups, according to political and local representation. Of course the government side being the most numerous and having the most rooms, and as there are more possible groups than there are possible rooms, there is necessarily more or less of an attempt on the part of the individual members and of the several groups to secure special quarters. The crowd of visitors who were kept standing at the gallery doors for a full hour while the members were settling their differences on this point were anything but complimentary in their remarks on the order, business methods and general intelligence of their honored representatives. On gaining admittance and finding that beyond answers to questions there was no business to go on with, they saw they had not lost much by waiting.

Thursday's session much resembled Wednesday's, except that there was no preliminary discussion. The auditor-general's report was laid on the table and another excuse for not proceeding with business evaporated. Several opposition members expressed the desire to adjourn over Friday until Monday, as they wished to go home. The premier insisted, however, on the motion to discuss the estimates being taken up on Friday in order that a further discussion of the railway question, of which both sides were given by Mr. McLean, might be gone on with. This was a notice of motion "on going into supply," an amendment which did not admit of an amendment to the motion being moved and is therefore availed of by members who desire to spring catch motions on the house, as well as by those who desire to affirm definitely some important principle.

The recent elections caused nearly as great and as marked a change in the make up of the house as those of 1896. Eighty new members have taken their seats, a large proportion out of 213. The disappearance of so many of the conservative leaders is only a little more notable than the like event to a number of the prominent members of the old guard of Ontario liberals. The seats of Sir Charles D. B. Macdonald, Geo. E. Foster, A. P. Caron, Dr. Monaghan, and N. F. Davis are filled by others, and James McMillan, Dr. Landerkin, John McMillan, Geo. E. Casey, ex-speaker Bain, Semvill, Livingston, Semple, and Keith, all of the liberals old guard, are here no more, while John Charlton, of the same comes in by acclamation as an independent. The disappearance of the old guard on both sides gives a new complexion to the house, and with all deference to those good men who have been lost in the shuffle, the present house is more up to date and business-like than its predecessor.

A $20,000 SCHOOL

The school board met Monday night to receive the report of K. A. McLeod, the contractor appointed by the board to prepare the different plans submitted for the new school house to be erected here. The matter has been under consideration for some weeks and the board, not being able to arrive at a decision as to the probable cost of the structures for which the many different plans were submitted, referred the whole matter to Mr. McLeod, as a special man, to investigate and report. Plans had been called for to cost $20,000, and the plans submitted ran from that sum all the way to $50,000. When the board met Monday for a final decision there were present Messrs. McQuay, A. Taylor, H. C. Taylor, Short and McLeod. After hearing Mr. McLeod's report it was moved and carried:

"That we accept plan number two, submitted by Edmonson & Johnson, of Edmonton."

The secretary was instructed to prepare a by-law to be submitted to the ratifiers, authorizing the board to raise $20,000 for the purpose of acquiring a school site and erecting a school there. Voting will take place on the by-law on the 20th March.

The site which will be submitted to the ratifiers at the same time, is on Queen street, one block directly north of Miss Snyder's house.

FIRST GAME FOR DOUGLAS CUP.

A victory for the Edmonton hockey team was the result of the first game for the Douglas cup, played at Strathcona on Tuesday night. The surprising feature of the game was the ease with which the northern players won, after so many close games preceding it in the season cup competition. The score was a walk-over for the Edmonton team, six to two. Only a very few spectators from Strathcona witnessed the game, the crowd being largely made up of enthusiasts from Edmonton who had driven over. F. E. Moroney was referee and W. Jackson and F. H. Gundy goal umpires. After the match the returning bus loads made night melodeons as they came down street, with the howling of horns, singing of songs and yelling of college cries, announcing the good tidings that they had won.

After the line up of the teams some quick play ensued, ended by Edmonton taking the first goal. Strathcona followed soon after by doing the same thing, and then, in rapid succession, Edmonton scored twice. After fifteen minutes play Edmonton again scored, the last goal before the final goal of the score at half time four to one in favor of the victors.

The last half was somewhat of a repetition of the first, being rather decided as to the scoring. Edmonton commenced by scoring and soon after got the rubber home again. Strathcona took the last goal of the game a few minutes before time was called.

PERSONNEL OF THE TEAMS WAS AS FOLLOWS:

Edmonton: Strathcona, goal - Goodridge, McMillan, goal - Robertson, R. Blair, cover guards - Sibbald, Brown, forwards - Campbell, Richards, Melville, Helliwell.

KEEPING OF THE READING ROOM.

The public reading room held its formal opening on Tuesday evening, before an audience that filled the room to its utmost capacity. Mr. A. Biddle explained the absence of Mr. Goggin and Mr. Giegg unavoidably detained from taking part in the programme. Mr. A. T. Cushing occupied the chair. The following is the programme:

Chorus solo, "Trauered," Mr. F. C. Jones.

Chorus solo, "Mazurka," Miss McQuay.

Song, "The Two Cities," Rev. Mr. Gray.

Address, Rev. Mr. Freeman.

Violin, cello and piano, "Intermezzo," Messrs. Baker and Jones.

Address, Mr. Shedd.

Song, "Marguerite," Mr. T. Lavoie.

Main title song, "Alice Where art Thou?" Mr. Baker.

Address, Rev. Mr. Buchanan.

Violin solo, "The Lost Chord," Mr. Jones.

Address, Rev. Mr. Gray.

The programme was rendered satisfactory to all present. As the event was not so much a social as an educational and literary affair in the opinion of many at home, criticism even if necessary would be cut off, plain. Special mention may however, be made of Mr. Lavoie's singing. He was heartily cheered for "Marguerite," and his voice in splendid voice. "The Sweetest Song Ever Told." Mr. Alex. McQuay played the accompaniments and very kindly played the piano during the interval before the commencement of the programme.

"WE WANT A RAILROAD."

The chairman's address dealt with the motives of the founders of the reading room, and the future of the institution, which is entirely non-commercial and is intended for the benefit of the public at large.

He hoped to see the reading room develop into a public library.

Mr. Buchanan emphasized the usefulness of the reading room as an educational institution for the young, a free of all for leaving school. The reading room furnishes such literature as is hoped to see the institution become not only a public library, but a social center where men might gather to discuss the questions of the day.

Mr. Gray spoke on behalf of the Young Men's Institute and warmly commended the reading room enterprise which he said was a natural development of the library and a very practical and suggestive hint on reading, advising his hearers to read carefully and avoid cheap literature.

The chairman expressed thanks to the donors who had contributed to the evening's programme and alluded to the financial results of the future. Further subscription was necessary to push the enterprise beyond a four month's experiment.

The meeting closed by singing the national anthem.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The council met Wednesday, all being present but Councillor Morris. Council Goodridge, for the first time this term, took his seat at the council board. Goodridge, owing to the unconvincing testimony of the civil election was in an odd position. There being a dispute as to who was entitled to the seat, he was unwilling to consider himself elected, even though declared so by the returning officer, and decided to resign without taking his seat. Thereupon a legal quibble stepped in, for according to the law, a councillor, once declared elected, cannot resign without having first taken his seat and been sworn in. Therefore in order to resign he had to take his seat. But he was given to understand that if he took the seat an action would be brought against him to unseat him; and again, in order to make the situation still more singular, the law provides that a duly elected councillor, who fails to take his seat, makes himself liable to an action for damages. If he took the seat he would be sued. As the only way out Council Goodridge took his seat and has also sent in his resignation, which was read and accepted at Wednesday's meeting. The seat will, therefore, be declared vacant shortly, and a councillor elected to fill it.

The first communication to be considered was from Geo. Gilmer, complaining about the difference in the weights recorded by the city scales and the scales of other taverns, and asking that the inspector of weights and measures be asked to come up. A communication along the same line was read from the market clerk, also suggesting the advisability of having the different scales regulated. The matter was referred to hall and market committee for report next meeting.

A. Driscoll, D. L. S., writer suggesting the advisability of getting out a large and complete map of the town. He asked that the town grant $150 towards the expense of getting lithographs made. Referred to finance committee for report next meeting.

The following communication was received from the fire brigade, suggesting alterations and improvements in the hall: That the partition dividing the council chamber from the sleeping room be removed, 3 1/2 feet into the council chamber, and a door placed at the extreme west end, the existing door way to be locked up and that a permanent light and plaster partition be erected in the rear of the sleeping room, with one large fanlight over each door way for ventilating purposes. That skylights be altered to permit of ventilation and extra fanlights supplied for sleeping rooms. That south-west room be divided by partition. That door way be cut and covered with a door erected at rear of hall. That stove and table be provided for northern hall of west room for use as a sitting and sitting room. That northwest room be divided by partition. For the better equipment of the fire brigade the secretary asks—in consequence of tanks at the fire hall and Imperial bank being useless and the one at the land office being in need of repair. That new tank of same capacity be built at Bellamy's corner; that a new tank be erected at public hospital, of same capacity; that pipes be placed near each tank to allow of their speedy location; that a combined water tank and coal cart be provided to accompany the engine. Referred to hall and market committee.

The acting secretary of the board of trade wrote urging the necessity of the installation of a system of water-works, and suggesting a joint meeting of the board and council to consider ways and means. This communication was also referred.

A letter from G. H. Barnard to T. W. Lines was handed over by the latter to the council. Mr. Barnard withdrew all propositions which he had made in respect to the installation of a water-works system, on account of opposition to his proposition.

H. C. Taylor, for the Kernohan estate, had mailed a check for the estate taxes on the last day for receiving the discount. The cheque was not received by the collector until next day, and the discount was not allowed. Mr. Taylor wrote claiming a write off of the amount which was still against the estate. As a matter of interest if not of law, the request was granted.

The telegrams already referred to in previous issues were read from MacKenzie & Mann regarding the construction of the railway.

The health officer reported that he had closed the schools, also that there would be free vaccination to-day and to-morrow, for citizens.

Wednesday, the 20th March, was fixed as the day to hear appeals against a franchise tax, and to fix special rates therefor.

The matter of the Garvey-Villeneuve account in connection with the Garvey-Goodridge election was referred to solicitor for report as to the town's liability.

The following accounts were passed: J. T. Plowry, police furniture, $9.50; Ross Bros, coal scuttles, 1.20; W. Humberstone, coal, 15.75; G. H. Graydon, clothing, .75; G. J. Kinsaid, stationery, 3.60; Haller & Aldridge, relief account, 3.40; Fire Brigade, fire at MacQuay's and pumping scow, 28.50; Fire Brigade, Jackson's shock, 19.00. The meeting then adjourned.

"WE WANT A RAILROAD."

A plea in alleged poetry comes from Stony Plain, for a railroad to that point. The Bulletin regrets that it is of space prevents it reproducing the poem in full. Below is given the first verse which, in addition to explaining the motif of the piece, is the most poetically constructed stanza of the entire ode. The right of the settlers of Stony Plain to railway facilities is so undeniably just and so plainly apparent that the Bulletin believes it will be recognized by the mighty men who build railways even without the eloquent and tuneful plea of the Plain's lost laureate.

"It's past the time for feeling now. We want a railroad through the Plain. We'll have our rights or have a row. If we cannot get our grain by train."

near of by striking gaps in the wire fences while his pursuers on the right were cutting their way through. For twelve miles he galloped on his little pony without a break, and within three miles of Kronen met reinforcements going to the rescue of those at Honing. To the officer commanding he explained the situation and asked permission to fight him. This was refused and he was ordered to continue to Kronen. In a report to Gen. Knox, This officer that general, who has since been prominent in the pursuit of Deterred, interrogated him closely, stating that he could not understand why he did not cut without stopping to the position. This Trooper explained by stating that there were twelve in the patrol and three
